NOTICE OF NEXT MEETING: 7 April 1993
Hunter College, Room 710
Executive Board: 6:15 PM
General Membership: 7:00 PM

Minutes of the PANYC General Membership Meeting 20 January 1993

President Joan Geismar called the meeting to order at 7:00PM. The following committees will report: Award, Burial Ground, Legislation, Newsletter, Nominations, Public Program, and Special Publication.

SECRETARY'S REPORT: Minutes of the General Membership Meeting of 18 November 1992 were amended as follows. The last sentence is deleted. Under "New Business," "Herman" in the last sentence is changed to "Herbert." The minutes are accepted as amended.

TREASURER'S REPORT: Harris reported a balance of $2163.13, reflecting expenditures of $200 for the George Miller workshop and monies paid out for graphics for the special publication as well as the continued influx of membership dues. There are currently 46 members paid up to date.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT: Geismar reported on correspondence on behalf of PANYC. A letter was sent to Senator D'Amato expressing PANYC's concern that the New York City office of the Environmental Branch of the Army Corps of Engineers not be closed; a copy of this letter is reprinted in the newsletter. The Metrotech situation continues; PANYC has not received any response to Geismar's correspondence. Geismar attended a meeting of the Municipal Arts Society on projected development of the waterfront; the membership agreed that a letter be sent expressing PANYC's dismay that archaeological and historic preservation concerns are not being given due attention in the development planning. Two members of the Executive Board, Daniel Pagano and Fred Winter, are resigning. Geismar proposed that 2 past officers, Cece Kirkorian and Sydne Marshall, be appointed to fill their terms until March elections. The membership agreed, as long as the procedure is in accord with the by-laws. Geismar will check this. Members are encouraged to write to the National Landmarks Commission in support of the nomination for the Wards Point site.

AWARDS COMMITTEE: Cantwell reported that there has been one nomination for the PANYC Public Service Award. Members are encouraged to submit nominations.

BURIAL GROUND COMMITTEE: The committee's comments on the "Research Design for Archeological, Historical, and Bioanthropological Investigations of the African Burial Ground and Five Points Area, New York, New York" were forwarded to Peter Sneed of GSA. A copy is reprinted in the newsletter.

LEGISLATION: Geismar thanked PANYC members who sent comments on the draft "Resolution establishing an archaeological review procedure on property owned by the City of New York providing an effective date." An open memo to those members appears in the newsletter. The draft legislation has been sent to Councilman Wendell Foster, who will sponsor it.

NEWSLETTER: The current newsletter is a double issue covering September through November 1992.

NOMINATIONS: PANYC elections for 1993-4 are scheduled for March; Dublin will send out requests for nominations to the membership. The Nominations Committee was reconstituted with Geismar as chair and Roselle Henn and Sydne Marshall as tentative members. Leslie Eisenberg volunteered to serve on the committee.

PUBLIC PROGRAM: Cantwell announced that the theme for the 1993 Public Program will be Multiculturalism in New York City 1624-1776. Papers will cover Native American, Dutch, English, and African-American experience in colonial New York.

SPECIAL PUBLICATION: The committee hopes to have the special publication ready by 3 April 1993. A final mock-up is almost completed.

OLD BUSINESS: The membership was advised that I. Beckleman of the Landmarks Preservation Commission sent a "strong letter" to Forest City-Ratner outlining what needs to be done to complete the Metrotech report. The letter was sent on 12/30/92, and it is hoped that it will be effective in speeding up compliance on this project. 39 people attended the George Miller ceramics workshop held in January. Geismar will write a note to Miller thanking him.

As there was no further business to be brought before the membership, it was moved that the meeting be adjourned.

Respectfully submitted, Susan A. Dublin, Secretary 1992-3

Dear Dr. Geismar:

Mayor Dinkins has asked me to respond to your recent letter regarding the relocation and reorganization of the Army Corps of Engineers' operations in New York City.

The Dinkins administration shares your concern about losing this organization and these important jobs. Last month, the Mayor met with the New York City Congressional delegation to seek their support for the retention of the Corps' operation in New York City. We are also working with local officials and community groups on this issue. Recognizing the importance of these jobs to Staten Island and the City of New York, we will continue to press for the full retention of this operation.

Thank you for your letter; we look forward to your support as these efforts continue.

Very truly yours,

I am writing on behalf of the Professional Archaeologists of New York City (PANYC) to heartily support the National Landmark nomination of the Ward's Point Archaeological site on Staten Island, New York. As so clearly presented in the nomination, this unique Native American site certainly warrants the recognition, and ultimately the protection, that National Landmark status would bestow.

Sincerely,

The Honorable Richard Schaffer, Chairman

New York, New York 10009

Dear Mr. Schaffer:

I am writing on behalf of the Professional Archaeologists of New York City (PANYC) to express our dismay at the lack of consideration of preservation issues in your generally admirable Comprehensive Waterfront Plan (1992). We are particularly concerned about the short shrift given to archaeology, especially since archaeology in the waterfront area has proven so rewarding. It has also proved just how fragile but tenacious archaeological resources can be: the Dutch and English Stadt House site and the 18th and 19th century 175 Water Street site, where a 92-ft. ship was uncovered in landfill, are just two cases in point. The ship is just one example of the surprises that might occur during waterfront construction if building sites are not explored beforehand, and prehistoric Native American sites remain an issue in waterfront areas.

Unlike historic structures, archaeological deposits do not usually need to be preserved, but they do need to be addressed. This requires consideration during the earliest planning stages in order to either avoid sensitive areas or to recover data prior to development and ensure that construction schedules will not be hampered. Delay is the nightmare of every developer as it is that of every urban archaeologist who is often faulted when it is poor planning that is to blame.

We entreat you to move archaeological considerations into the forefront of your planning procedures (not just mentioned on page 123 of a precedent-setting planning document). Only then will our irreplaceable underground resources, for which there is no list or comprehensive map, have the chance to fulfill their potential and enrich understanding a major facet of our city's history, the past development of the five-borough waterfront.

If we can offer any assistance or advice, please to not hesitate to contact us.

Sincerely,

Joan H. Geismar, Ph.D.

Dear Mr. Martin,

We are writing on behalf of the Professional Archaeologists of New York City to express our concern for the condition of the human remains recovered from the African Burial Ground site currently being stored at Lehman College, CUNY.

In May 1992, we expressed concern about the condition of the remains in our letter to Don Klima, a copy of which was sent to William Diamond. We understand now that the problem is worse and the remains are in fact deteriorating. It is imperative that the conservation measures recommended in the recent conservation survey begin immediately. We strongly urge that you initiate these measures before it is too late.

Dear Governor Cuomo:

The members of the Professional Archaeologists of New York City (PANYC) are dismayed--indeed, outraged--to learn that New York City may lose yet another unequalled archive. The closing of the New York Historical Society library must be averted.

Only recently we lost the Museum of the American Indian (Heye Foundation), a resource that was invaluable to archaeologists researching Native American cultures, and now it appears we will be losing the city's--and indeed, the nation's--premiere research library for New York history. To lose this resource would be disaster, and to see the collections dispersed would be intolerable.

We urge you to do everything in your power to keep this collection in New York City where it belongs, and most fittingly at the institution that has amassed and housed it since 1804. Resources such as the New York Historical Society and its library enrich our city. To lose them diminishes our city and our state. We implore you to protect our venerable cultural resources and keep them accessible.

Dear Ms. Stahlnecker:

At Anne-Marie Cantwell's suggestion, and based on Senator Paterson's remarks on February 17, 1993 regarding excavation and protection of New York City's archaeological resources, I am sending a copy of draft legislation drawn up by the Professional Archaeologists of New York City (PANYC). The draft and the cover letter were submitted to Councilman Wendell Foster in December, and we are waiting to hear from him. Perhaps the proposed legislation may interest you and the Senator, particularly in light of the recent developments regarding the African Burial Ground.

Needless to say, we are encouraged by Senator Paterson's interest in, and concern with, the City's archaeological resources. Please feel free to contact us if we can be of any assistance. I will be out of town until March 3, but either Nan Rothschild or Anne-Marie Cantwell, whom you know, can be called.

Sen. Honored for Helping Preserve Burial Ground

By Sarah Hollander

STAFF WRITER

Sen. David Paterson was honored yesterday for his efforts in preserving the Negro Burial Ground in lower Manhattan by the Professional Archaeologists of New York City.

"This was a community issue not just for African-American history but for the history of New York itself," Paterson said at yesterday's symposium at the Museum of the City of New York. The subject of the meeting was the archaeology of 17th and 18th Century New York.

Paterson has worked to preserve the Negro Burial Ground since its initial excavation in 1991, striving to have the site designated as a New York City Historic District and a National Historic Landmark. Paterson's office also organized the Burial Ground Oversight Task Force, composed of representatives from the black community, the New York City Landmarks Preservation Commission, archaeologists and others.

"This experience has given me precious knowledge of the benefits of archaeology," Paterson said. "The site has enlightened us to the fact that the majority of those shipped from the African continent to America were children. This has given us a whole new view of that time."

The burial ground, about 20 feet below surface level, was covered over in the 19th Century. "Here is a graphic example of the burying of African-American history," said Dr. Michael Blakey, scientific director for the project.

"The cover-up of the cemetery disguised the very crucial roles that African-Americans contributed to colonial New York."

Bones of 420 slaves and 560 burial-related artifacts have been uncovered so far. Artifacts such as ornamentally filed teeth, a musket ball in a woman's ribs, coins in eye sockets and a gold button from a British naval officer's uniform have revealed information about the lives of New York residents who have been dead for more than 200 years.

"These humble artifacts are quite important in what they mean to people," said Conservator Cheryl La Roche. "I feel like the lay public in New York is taking to libraries to find more information on early African-Americans."

Bone find probed by city, Con Ed

City officials and Con Edison yesterday were investigating whether utility workers trampled skeletal remains of an 18th-century African-American cemetery.

"We are awaiting a determination about whether human bones are actually there," said Con Edison spokesman Dan Walden.

Workers were excavating Saturday when an archeologist monitoring the work told them the human bones were present, Walden said.

The site is a block from where 400 skeletons were discovered in 1991 during work on a federal office building.

Congress has allocated $3 million to protect and memorialize the Negroes Burial Ground, as the cemetery was known.

Tracie Rohzon, a spokeswoman for the city's Landmarks Preservation Commission, said the agency had warned Con Ed that the Chambers St. site was in the middle of a proposed landmark area for the cemetery.

Walden said permits for the work, a nonemergency upgrade of electrical service, "included no warnings or caveats of any kind."

State Sen. David Paterson accused Con Ed of destroying some skeletons.

Con Edison Crew Unearths Bones Near Early Black Graveyard

A Con Edison crew installing transformers for the city's Department of General Services yesterday unearthed several dozen human bones believed to be from the Negroes Burial Ground in lower Manhattan, prompting calls for an investigation into who gave permission for the job.

The digging in front of the Tweed Courthouse-Criminal Court at Chambers and Elk Streets was halted about 3 P.M. after archaeologists and preservationists convinced workers that they were disturbing the oldest municipal African cemetery known in the United States. The scene is about 200 yards southeast of a site that was uncovered in 1991.

"There were piles and piles of dirt with bones popping out all over the place," said Eric Byron, who works with New York Unearthed, an archaeology museum.

Joe DePlasco, a spokesman for the city's Department of Transportation, which issues permits for digging, said he was unable to immediately determine who at the department issued the permit.

Howard Wright, a member of the African Burial Ground Steering Committee, which was formed by Congress in September to protect the cemetery, said the digging was an example of the lack of consideration the city has shown for the site.

But Deputy Mayor Barbara Fife said that whoever issued the permit may have made a mistake.

Gina L. Stahinecker, an assistant to State Senator David A. Paterson, a Manhattan Democrat who has been active on the issue, said her office would begin an inquiry on Tuesday.

Crews Get New Rules For Burial Grounds

By Michael H. Cottman

STAFF WRITER

Several days after Con Edison work crews allegedly destroyed a number of skeletal remains while digging in an 18th Century cemetery for blacks in lower Manhattan, the Dinkins administration said yesterday that utility companies must now have city approval before working in the area.

On Saturday, the Landmarks Preservation Commission ordered Con Ed to stop excavation when members of the commission were told that the crews were uncovering human remains while conducting a routine upgrade to the Tweed Courthouse on Chambers Street. To do the work — much of it underground — Con Ed had to have access to the Negro Burial Ground across the street at Broadway and Reade Street.

Eric Byron, who works for New York on Earth, a city museum that specializes in archaeology, said yesterday he noticed Con Edison work crews uncovering human bones on the site while he was walking past it Saturday morning. "What I saw was human bones and not just a few, but a lot in one pile," Byron said.

Byron said he was familiar with the burial ground and questioned workers, but was quickly ordered to leave the site. Byron said he grabbed an armful of bones and ran back to his office near the South Street Seaport because he feared Con Edison would deny it was digging up the remains.

Con Ed spokesman Dan Walden said the crews were unaware the burial ground existed and never saw any bones. Walden said that Con Ed obtained a city permit from the Department of Transportation.

"We had no reason to know that this was a sensitive site," Walden said. "Our crews saw nothing that they identified as bones from start to finish. But they are not archaeologists, forensic scientists or experts on human remains. They are work crews."

"We issued the permit," said DOT spokesman Joseph DePlasco. "Henceforth, all requests for permits for that area will be referred to Landmarks."

Yesterday, the Landmarks Preservation Commission issued an immediate directive to three city agencies — the departments of transportation, general services and environmental protection — to contact Con Edison and New York Telephone, the two utility companies that need access to the city's underground cables, according to Deputy Mayor Barbara Fife.

The Negro Burial Ground holds the remains of freed blacks and slaves from the 1700s. Almost 410 burials and more than 1 million artifacts have been uncovered by archaeologists trying to document the history of the city's early black settlers.

Dear Senator Paterson:

On behalf of PANYC (Professional Archaeologists of New York City), I am pleased to inform you that you have been selected as the first recipient of the PANYC Special Award for Outstanding Contributions to New York City Archaeology. This is a new award designed to honor non archaeologists and their efforts to preserve the city's archaeological heritage. You are being honored for your work protecting the African Burial Ground, especially for organizing the Oversight Task Force and for creating a coalition of community members, archaeologists, preservationists, architects, and other members of the public, all concerned with working to protect this important piece of our city's past.

The award will be announced and presented at the 13th Annual PANYC Symposium held on April 3, 1993 from 1:00-3:00 PM at the Museum of the City of New York (see enclosed flyer). We hope that you will be able to be there to receive the award.

We feel that your efforts on behalf of the city's archaeological past have been extraordinary and we are pleased to honor them by awarding you the first PANYC Special Award.

Sincerely yours,

DATA GATHERING FORM

This form will be used to compile the archeology week (May 9-15) calendar of events for 1993. Please fill in the requested information and forward this form to your regional coordinator (listed below). In addition to lectures, an "EVENT" can also include a workshop, tours, a special or on-going exhibit, showing a film or video or discussing a book in a public group, etc. etc. Archaeology Week focuses on educating about and involving the public in archaeology, its goals, methods, interpretations, relationships to past and present living communities. By extension, public history, Native American and other folklife events are also included. So try to reach out to historical societies, Indian Nations, Urban Indian Community Centers, historic restorations, enactment groups, and so on. All aspects and all time periods (right up to the study of the present using archaeological methods) are included. BUT REMEMBER, the event MUST be open to the general public to be listed on the calendar. MEMBERSHIP APPLICATION

Membership in PANYC is open to any professional archaeologist who subscribes to the organization's purpose and meets the following criteria:

- A. Applicants must hold an advanced degree (M.A., M.S., M.Phil., Ph.D., J.D., or official A.B.D.) from an accredited institution in archaeology, anthropology, history, classical studies, or other germane discipline with a specialization in archaeology.
- B. At least six weeks of professionally supervised archaeological field training and four weeks of supervised laboratory analysis and/or curation experience are required. Requirements for field and laboratory analysis may be met by attendance at an archaeological field school which meets the guidelines set by the Society for Professional Archaeologists (SOPA).
- C. Applicants must demonstrate professional experience in one or more areas of archaeological activity, such as: field research and excavation, research on archaeological collections, archival research, administration of units within public or private agencies oriented toward archaeological research, conduct of cultural resource management studies for public agencies, or teaching with an emphasis on archaeological topics. Applicants meeting the education and training criteria and having other professional interests related to archaeology will be considered on an individual basis.
- D. Applicants must be approved by a majority of members present at a regularly scheduled meeting of the general membership. Members receive the Newsletter and other PANYC publications.
- E. Applicants should submit a statement of purpose that includes their interest in New York City archaeology. Members of PANYC have a commitment to protect and preserve the city's archaeological resources and to support research and encourage publication of information recovered from those resources. Members will not engage in illegal or unethical conduct involving archaeological matters. PANYC is not an accrediting organization and is not to be used as such.

We invite anyone interested in New York City archaeology to subscribe to our Newsletter and attend our general membership meetings and annual Public Symposium.

If you are interested in joining PANYC or would like to subscribe to the Newsletter, please complete the form below and return it to: Susan Dublin, PANYC Sec., Dept of Anthro. Suny Purchase, 735 Anderson Hill Rd. Purchase, N.Y. 10577
